Need help finding independent financial advice about care arrangements?

For many residents, it's important to have sound financial advice in order to make carefully considered plans for later life, or to help with care costs

Such advice should be independent, so you feel confident that you're getting the best advice possible

A suitably qualified financial adviser will be able to provide impartial advice and help you navigate through the complexities of care funding, such as:

- Equity release
- Long term care funding
- Pensions and annuities
- Investments and savings
- Tax planning

Local authorities are required to help signpost people to independent financial advice about care and support. We cannot make a recommendation to use one particular financial adviser but we can signpost you to sources of help. We suggest you make your own choice by selecting one of the members of the Society of Later Life Advisers (SOLLA).

Why use a SOLLA member?

All SOLLA members are specialists in advising people on financial matters in later life.

SOLLA operates a rigorous accreditation process where individual advisers, rather than the company they work for, achieve Later Life Adviser Accreditation and become registered with SOLLA. This requires holding appropriate financial/tax planning, equity release and long term care qualifications regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority; and achieving a 'soft skills' standard demonstrating a knowledge and understanding of the needs, capacity and issues of dealing with older or more vulnerable clients

How do I find a SOLLA member?

Finding a SOLLA accredited advisor is easy. Simply visit the SOLLA website and enter your postcode which will produce a list of advisers within a pre-determined radius of your home. You can then choose which adviser you wish to contact. SOLLA can also be contacted by phone by calling 0333 2020 454. Please note there may be charges for some services so we recommend you that you ask about any charges when you first make contact
